

g) Claims

1. The methodology of developing product that can be used as paper trade or security
2. The business model that allows a trading platform for these products

h) Abstract of Disclosure a real-time, trading platform that integrates an automated, double-sided auction system with robust, scaleable technology for cash management and settlement and a combination of new and traditional financial instruments for hedging both commodity price and foreign exchange risk. The new business model replaces the inefficient market with a comprehensive trading platform and integrated risk management capability constituting an important evolutionary paradigm for supply chain management in the manufacturing arena
